

What's Your Name? Tribute to J. Davidson Hero

By Mark Edgemon

Bob or Bill,
Susan or Jane,
Common letters spelling common names.

See Mike stroll down the street,
Getting a look from a pretty blonde.

While Ann reads a paper,
Others with simple names simply don't speak.

Edwin Bodgewick meeting a doctor,
Keiji and Daigila, a strange looking pet,
Rosamund da Carmo, old country chemist,
Bizroy, a Governor,
Dewey, celebrating Christmas, tis the Season you know,
Wor Nerto is a person most would care not to meet,
And there probably are more.
All names unique in creation.

One more name to add to the pot,
Davidson Hero,
Now what kind a man is he?
The answer is simple,
Read his stories and see,
All living a life on a page,
Yet true-to-life to a creator,
As only people having names can be.

In stories be they fact or fiction,
It is the writer that brings them to life,
And with a name like Hero,
Letting loose with his mind,
Brings names of creation never seen before,
To life.

The End