

Fearing the Unknown

By Robin Lipinski

Looking over the vast ocean,
Covering perceived objects dark and deep,
We fear the unknown.
Turning our back in failure,
Shuffling back up the shore to the light,
The home of our mind is security.
Meanwhile, what we can't
Sea, is the moon of gravity pulling back
That ocean, revealing it was only inches
Deep...

The End