

Smile

(By Question)
By Robin B Lipinski

Mind fried by trial, by tribulation and pain. Always the question, it still remains.
You have an answer to your own question, how? Look inside.
DNA strands twined in our beginning, it has always been our way.

Africa, Pelargos flying high to bring new life to the splitting lands of Earth.
You were there in spirit, watching the bird bring life.
RNA, amino acids, mixing to begin your answer, adding to your life.

Stuffed full like a turkey, strutting his stuff to show all, preening as did his ancestor Pelargos, is this the stuff you know?
Smile Lester, smile, for it calms the pain of life. Smile now Lester, smile, for now you have your answer.

Goodnight.
